

Sarah Hicks serves as the Assistant Vice Chancellor & Director for State Relations for The Texas A&M University System. She has been with The A&M System since 2014. In this role, she coordinates the efforts of representatives from the System's eleven universities, seven state agencies and a comprehensive health science center. The State Relations team is responsible to communicate both the needs and directives of the executive and legislative offices to the System, as well as the diverse activities, needs and successes of the System to the executive and legislative offices. Additionally, the team often interacts with other state agencies on behalf of the System entities.

Prior to joining The A&M System, Sarah worked as the Committee Director for the Senate Finance Committee (2004-2014), where she served under Chairman Steve Ogden and Chairman Tommy Williams. As committee director, she shepherded five state budgets, a school finance bill, and tax bills through the complexities of the legislative process, giving her invaluable insights into the budget and the behind the scenes decision making processes.

Sarah is twice an Aggie. She earned her Bachelor's degree in Accounting and Finance and then a Master's degree in Public Service Administration from the George Bush School of Public Service.

Sarah and her husband Matt live in the Austin area with their two sons (8 and 2).
